Summary: What if Tsuna and Giotto were brothers what would it be like. I hope you guys would like it This will be posted when we're I get writers block for my other fan fix so Idk how long it will be or how often the post will be made.

1. Chapter 1: A Bundle of Joy

Author's note:

This will probably be a very short story. Maybe?

Giotto was the older sibling he was about four and a half years older than his younger brother Tsunayoshi or Tsuna for short.

Giotto

He was the smarter brother and because he was older he was more responsible.

He has golden blond hair and blue eyes. He also had the same gravity defying hair like his younger brother.

He was also a bit more mischievous than his younger brother.

He is very very protective of his younger brother

Birthday January 1

Tsuna

He is still lame-Tsuna and trips and falls on his self a lot which worries Giotto a bit.

He looks up to his older brother.

He ironically enough is a bit stronger than Giotto (but not at first)

Brown hair and eyes

Birthday October 24

Both

Are really protective of each other.

Does not like to cause harm on to others.

Both have gravity defying hair.

Super duper kind.

One day Nana came home with a cute little baby boy in her arms.

When Giotto head his mom and dad coming to the door he ran down the stairs almost tripping himself with the excitement of having a younger...He didn't know what gender his younger sibling was going to be because he only found out last minute that he was having a new family member. He remembered the morning clearly.

His Dad was running around like a crazy maniac becuae he wasnt their when Giotto was born becuase of "work". He didnt know what to do and was panicked becuae this was the first time he did this kind of thing, so it took him a few minutes to remember where the phone was kept. While his dad was doing that his Mom was trying to hold in the pain and not yell so much so that she wouldn't worry Giotto. Giotto was confused because he didn't know what was going on.

So he asked his mom, "Mommy what's going on are you ok?" His hyper intuition was kicking in although this was the first time and last (for a long priod of time and when I say long I mean longggg)that happen probably because he saw that his mom was in pain.

She was a bit surprised that her 4 and a half year old son could tell that she was in pain even though she tried to look like she was not in pain.

She answer her young boys question while gesturing him to come closer.

"I'm fine. Look here." She took his little hand and put it over her big belly.

Giotto blushed he felt little kicks happening ever so often inside her belly.

"You going to have a new family member." She smiled then her smile faded away as the pain was coming back. Giotto got worry again because she suddenly stopped smiling.

Giotto was about to ask something, but before he could his Dad came running into the room that they were in and was huffing,

"I called the hospital... They know we are coming. Let's hurry and get to the car."

He said to her helping her up. Then he looked at the little boys blue eyes and said,

"Wait here Giotto everything is going to be alright. We will be back soon"

Giotto didn't want to stay behind because he was worried but he had no choice but to obey.

"OK Daddy." He said looking sad.

Giotto waited and waited to hear if his parents came back. He waited I. His room looking out the window on to the quiet street. What seemed like a few minutes felt like a few hours and what seemed like hours felt like days for the little boy who was peeping out the window.

Finally he saw his Mom and Dad get out of their car. He ran to the door. Tried to open it but was too short. When his mom and dad open the door and came through he saw them caring a little baby in their arms. He was crying. Giotto wanted to get a better look at his new family member so he asked,

"Mommy can I please hold..." he didn't know if it was a she or he.

She smiled at the blue eyed and golden hair boy,

"Sure you can but first sit down."

Giotto was so excited he sat down right there.

She smiled even more and bent down to give the blond boy the crying baby. As she did she said.

"His name is Tsunayoshi. He will be your younger brother."

The golden hair boy blushed as he was he being given this tiny little ball of happiness.

He looked at the crying boys little face and said,

"Hi Tsunayoshi-kun starting today I'm going to be your big brother."

The baby stopped crying and started to smile which made Giotto smile even more and blush a bit more.

The two sat there for hours. Giotto was cradling his younger brother.

Giotto was getting sleepy. So his Mom picked the brunette up. The brunette started to cry, he still wanted to be with his older brother. She then said to the blond hair boy, "Go to your room, I'll bring little Tsuna-kun up there with you."

Giotto smiled and suddenly got a huge burst of energy and went running up to his room. His Mom was coming upstairs slowly.

She saw Giotto waiting for her as he left a big spot for Tsuna he be kept in. She place the brunette their and smiled as she exited the room. Giotto wasn't hesitate to snuggle up to his younger brother as they quickly fell asleep.

Nana sat down next to her husband and said to him.

"He already grew fon of him in such a short time."

Author's note

This is brotherly love ok... OK!

Well anyways I hope you like this. I needed a little break from my other fan fiction

So we finally meet.

I'll probably will have more chapters but won't post this one as often.

Please excuse the Grammer and spelling errors

2. Chapter 2: Mischievous Little Tsuna

Its been a few months since Tsuna joined the family. Baby Tsuna loved his brother so much that he tried to learn how to crawl pretty quickly. When he did he follow Giotto everywhere.

Once when Giotto had to go to kindergarten his little brother crawled up to him and hugged him leg so that he wouldn't be able to go outside the door.

From the kitchen Giotto's and Tsuna's Mom said, "Giotto-kun, shouldn't you already be gone by now?"

The blond boy being pinned down by his brother said, "I can't otÅ•tosan (young brother) won't let me go."

Their mom came out from the kitchen and saw the baby brunette hugging on to the golden hair boy. She sighed and then smiled,

"Tsu-kun your brother has to go to school now. Can you please let go?"

"Waahhh!" the baby cried looking up at the blue eyed brother with puppy dog eyes that said, 'don't leave me onÅ«san.'

Giotto little checks had I little red on it because he was blushing at his cute baby brother. He then looked up at his Mom,

"I'll just take otÅ•tosan to school today. It would be fun and I think Tsuna-kun would like it. I'll make sure that he will be safe and not wonder off."

Tsuna hear Giotto say this and then turned to his mom still holding on to Giotto and gave the same puppy dog eyes he gave to Giotto.

Their Mom sighed, he though about it and she knew Tsuna would let go of Giotto. "OK OK, Tsu-kun you won. I'll let you go with Giotto-kun. But don't cause any trouble for him ok."

Tsuna kun stopped his crying and the tears that where in his eyes glisten as he look up at Giotto then his Mom with a big smile.

"Gitto, wait here for I sec I need to give you something." His mom went off to get something then came back with a little red wagon and two brown bags with labels of each of their names on it. "Take this with you. You can put Tsuna on the waggon and drag him around with you so that he won't have to crawl. And if you or Tsu-kun gets hungry I pack some lunches for you... you know this is a big responsibility?"

"Yes mom I know I'll make sure he will be safe." The golden hair boy said smiling.

"Ok, now you better hurry up before you get late."

Gitto put Tsuna into the red wagon and put his shoes and coat on because it was a bit cold. He opened the door and a huge gust of wind came in. Baby Tsuna sneeze and then sniffles as he pulled the coat he had on over his body.

The blood boy turned around and said "Bye Mom. I'll see you soon!"

Giotto went running out of the door pulling Tsuna in the wagon. He made sure that he wasn't too fast because he didn't want his little brother to fall out of the wagon. But he went fast enough so that he wouldn't be late for class. Some people on the street looked at the two kids but didn't say anything.

Half way through Giotto noticed that Tsuna was sneezing a lot so he took of his jacket and rapped it around Tsuna smiling, "I'm sorry that I can't keep you warmer than than." Then went on with running. He started singing so that Tsuna-kun could be entertained and it worked Tsuna was smiling and saying nonsense words that went along with Giotto's song.

Giotto was just barely on time because as soon as he entered his classroom the bell rung.

3. Chapter3TheirBrotherlyLove is Convincing

Author's note

Sorry for lack of updates more details in my profile and story called authors notes

Giotto just bairly got into the class on time because as he enter the room the bell sounded ring

When Giotto came through the door everyone looked at the little red waggon he was pulling behind him. At first the didn't see little Tsuna's head because he was hiding inside the jacket he was wearing.

The cloth started to move and everyone looked wide eye at Giotto wondering what did he have in the waggon. So as kindergartens the started to surround Giotto and the red wagon. The jack kept of wiggling around and people were gasping. Giotto didn't notice that his little brother was moving around because he had his back turned and was getting out his homework and things he needed for class.

After a second of wiggling Tsuna broke free from his little trap. He poked his tiny little head out which made everyone that was surrounded the boys gasp. Giotto notice the sudden gasp by his classmate and he turned around to see everyone surround him. One of Giotto's classmates was going to ask something but then the teacher just came into the classroom and saw the commotion and said,

"Every, please take your seats."

Everyone obeyed and didn't say a word of rejection.

The teacher set down all the things she was holding on to her desk. Then saw when the crowd died down she saw new to one of her best students a red waggon. She walked over to Giotto and then to her supprize she saw the little baby boy who was only a few months old. The baby looked just like her student but had brown hair spiky gravity defying hair instead of blond. She also notice the boys big brown eyes just like Giotto's as he was blinking of to sleep.

"Giotto-kun?" She asked

"Yes-sensai?" Giotto answer politely.

"Who is this?"

Giotto face lightened up and he had a little cute blush on his face and said proudly "This is my otÅ•tosan, his name is Sadawa Tsunayoshi, Tsuna for short."

"How old is your brother." She asked because she was concerned.

"He is about 4 and a half months old sensai."

She looked at him wide eyed and then looked down at the little boy who was fast asleep and had little drool coming out of his mouth with made the teacher smile but the quickly it was followed by a sigh.

"Giotto-kun I can't let you take your baby brother come to class it's too much of a responsibility."

"I know I know." Giotto said worriedly because he knew the teacher would take his brother away. "I'll be sure not to leave him and make sure nothing will happen to him."

But she didn't convince the teacher. She started to remove his jacket which was covering the baby and started to pick him up. This made the brunette wake up almost and before he opened his eyes he knew he was being held by a stranger and started to cry. The only person Tsuna would allow to carry himself was his older brother Giotto.

The teacher was shocked at the young boy's sudden cry. So she put him back down into the wagon and covered him back up. But the crying didn't stop.

"See Giotto-kun it's too much of a responsibility and he would also distrust-."

Giotto picked up his young brunette version of himself. As soon as he did the baby stopped crying and opening his eyes smiling a huge big smile at his older brother.

Giotto looked up at the teacher with his blue eyes in puppy dog style, "Please let him stay. I miss him and he'll miss me. Please-sensai."

The teacher was shocked at the bond the two had for each other. She debated over the idea of letting Giotto keep his young brother but she finally said. "...well ok,.. but if you can't control him I'll have to call your parents and tell them to take him back home."

"Yay!" Giotto cheered while cradling his young brother in his arms. One around his butt and the other around the back. "Here that Tsu-kun you can stay as long as I can take care of you!"

Giotto put Tsuna back into the red wagon because he didn't want his brother to fall because he was getting tired of holding him. But Giotto still bent over the wagon hugging his brother tightly.

Everyone saw the two brothers display of love for each other and they all smiled cute tiny smiles.

The teacher sighed but smiled then went to the front of the room and said, "ok class today we will be learning some new words. And then we will have free time until the break."

Tsuna-kun was awake and wanted to hold Giotto and hug him. So Giotto tried to pull the waggon as close as possible to him. When he couldn't move it no more Tsuna gapped on to his fingers "hugging" his older brother because he was too tiny to do much more. He leaned next to Giotto and Giotto smiled and blushed a bit and whispered into his young brother's ear, "OK Tsuna now class has started and I need to learn so please be quiet." Giotto didn't expect Tsuna to know what he was saying but somehow (pistt it's his hyper intuition btw) Tsuna knew what he was saying and he smiled at the question.

AUTHOR'S note

I hope you enjoy this chapter sorry if it wasn't that good.

I'll still continue Tsuna being in class next chapter just a heads up.

Please comment on what you liked it keeps me motivated :3

Also I don't know when the next chapter will come out.

Please excuse grammar and spelling mistakes.
